OBJECTIVE OF THE SEMINAR

India is one of the fastest growing economies of the world. The industrial sector with an advent of new technologies poses lot of hazards in the workplace, which can be controlled through various measures which includes elimination or substitution, engineering and administrative controls. The control of these hazards is very much needed to sustain and to improve the safety, health and productivity of the workforce.

Even though the Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) are always recommended as the last line of defense, its relevance in ensuring safety and health of the workers is of paramount importance considering the prevalence of non – preventable and uncontrolled hazards at workplaces. PPE is not regarded as an alternative to engineering or other suitable control measures but should be provided and maintained where such control measures cannot ensure protection. It is the responsibility of the management to provide and enforce the use of PPE among the workforce. The PPEs before issue shall be checked for its compliance to the Indian Standard, reliability, condition of PPEs such as damaged or in need of service or repair by a qualified person. The PPEs shall be stored and maintained according to manufacturer's instructions.

Hence it is imperative to emphasis upon different types of PPE such as respiratory and non-respiratory personal protective equipment, their use, maintenance and storage.
